What's the focus of this position?

Whilst in any school, student's ability to access the curriculum and be given support is the responsibility of every teacher and staff member, our College aims higher. Subsequently, at St Philip's Christian College, inclusive education and student support is placed as a very high priority. A Student Learning Support Officer (SLSO) is part of the Student Support team and aims to provide the relevant support to students from Kindergarten to Year Twelve. They work as part of the Inclusive Education team and partner with members of the teaching staff in Junior, Middle and Senior School. Their purpose is to enhance a student's learning experience and help support students in a way that works best with their learning needs.
